

Moore Recognized by ISA

Ron Moore recently completed his tenure as an Illinois representative for the American Soybean Association (ASA). Ron has served the soybean industry since the fall of 1999 when he was first appointed to fill out an unexpired term of a District Director. Through his service for ASA, Ron has served as the organization's Secretary, Vice President, President and Chairman. Over the years, Ron has made many contributions to the Illinois soybean industry, through his service as a former Illinois Soybean Association board director serving as Treasurer, Vice Chairman, and Chairman. He has also served on the U.S. Soybean Export Council, in addition to involvement with various other ag organizations and within his community.

Ron is a graduate of the Illinois Farm Bureau's Ag Leaders of Tomorrow and IL Ag Leadership Foundation's Illinois Ag Leadership Program and has been active with numerous community endeavors. In 2019 he received the American Soybean Association's Distinguished Leadership Award, given to an individual with whose leadership, national or state soybean associations have been strengthened, impact on soy-related policy has been enhanced, and farmers have become more educated and engaged. He has a degree from Culver-Stockton College and raises corn, soybeans, alfalfa and feeder cattle with his wife, Deborah, and son, Michael.

Ron Moore of Roseville was recognized on November 29th at the ISA's Impact Awards for his time spent serving on the American Soybean Association. Moore (R) is picture with ISA Chairman Steve Pitstick (L).
